

CD 7 the law of Love

What want to bring out today, is the fact that love is a little bit more than what most people take it to be. Most people think of love as their relationships with others, the way they sexually interrelate with a beloved. I would like to point out that that in itself is a selfish type of love -- where someone is giving to someone else because they are getting something from that other person. It may be sexual satisfaction, or aspects of their relationship that they need fulfilled within themselves, companionship and so forth. Also, this form of loving is emotional in its base and the emotions always relate to themselves. It's all about the I and the me. You are emotional because you are drawing something to you. You are drawing your beloved to you. The law of Love is the opposite of that. It's when you lose yourself in love, when every core of your being is simply there to give. To give to the beloved with no thought of the self. It goes away from the emotions, because the emotions cloud and distort in relationship to the self -- to what the self thinks it wants or needs. The law of Love is clear, cold reason. It does not distort -- it looks at truth only. It is clear because it has to see what to give to the beloved in the past, present and future. What is it that the beloved really needs? Is it going to cause harm in the future? Is the gift rightly timed so as to produce the right effect? Will it produce the healing effect in the beloved? What is the psychology of the beloved? It all takes quite some reason and understanding and it cannot be clouded by the emotions -- it cannot be distorted in any way. It must know truly what is needed, and then give the right gift at the right time.

It has often been said that "Love makes the world go round" but in most people it is really what makes the emotions go round. So what we are going to look at is what really makes the world go round. When you focus upon yourself and what you do, you draw everything to yourself -- the selfish and loving interrelationship is what essentially causes suffering. Ultimately, it is what causes pain and sickness. When you relate to another person with a selfish motive -- at first the relationship is joyous for both, but eventually somebody stops giving what the other demands or what the other wants from that relationship. As a consequence, pain ensues and the relationship breaks up inevitably. What people must learn to do is to interrelate in such a way that they don't have those demands and they don't have those expectations. They simply give -- but they must give wisely. Many people think that when they give that it should be equanimous -- giving without thought -- just simply giving. This is wrong in itself. All of us for instance, only have a certain amount of possessions. Even a millionaire only has a certain amount of money to give. They actually have to carefully target the giving of their money when doing so in their philanthropy. You know of the starving in Africa and the starving of the Third World in India and South America and places like that. Even in these rich countries such as Holland there are many poor people in desperate situations. You can't give to all of them. You have to target your resources and you have to learn how to wisely give to the areas which are your special concern of giving. This takes wisdom.

Whether it is relationships or whether it's on a wider scale, when you take from all around you in order to satisfy your so-called love or giving, when it selfish love (because you are looking for something that will make you happier) -- then what you are doing is causing the seeds of sickness and disease around you. Anything that is taken from the other must be at one time given back. Understand that everything is ephemeral and everything is changing and everything is transient. There is nothing that is lasting in this world of forms. Therefore when you hang on to that which is transient -- which many people do in relationships -- then inevitably there is pain as a result. Those that are truly on the path of love know this particular law, know this particular lesson and therefore they are always seeking out that which is non-transient. That which is non-ephemeral -- that which is lasting and that which is permanent. That which lies at the heart of all lives that are incarnate.

Essentially this form of giving is one of expansion from the centre of that which is your little universe outwards into the greater universe of which you were part. You learn to give, you learn to serve. When you learn to serve, energy starts to pour through you and that gives you the feeling of love. Your consciousness expands and embraces the other. Male/female interrelationships or male / male relationships or whatever form of love you have as a partner, is just the beginning of consciousness expansion. You reach out to that which is of like nature to yourself and your beloved, and you try to make that permanent, lasting, and real. And all of you know that the sex acts are impermanent -- they don't last. So in itself it is not enough -- it is not true love -- it is a symbol of greater unions to come. As you reach out to your partner, you are endeavouring to explore your partner -- all of the qualities and all of the nuances of the partner. The way that the partner interblends and harmonises with you. And when there are points of harmony that is what you call love. There is where you can touch the partner, there is where true giving can eventuate. And where there are points of disharmony and friction, these are the arenas which you must work upon to produce greater harmony and a greater balance in the relationship. A greater auric compatibility.

Love therefore is stretching out to know the beloved, to know the beloved in totality and to incorporate the beloved in your aura and in your sphere of containment. It means therefore, greater and greater understanding. You enter into the world of the beloved and then you push the world of the beloved into greater bounds of realisation, into greater fruition of revelation of touch, of all the senses including that of the mind. This is but the beginning of the expansion that is love. The path of enlightenment starts from this particular point and goes outward. The beloved becomes not just a partner in bed, but becomes the plant kingdom around you -- the aura of nature -- it becomes earth, it can become this solar system, this universe. It could even become a world religion or even more than that -- expanding outwards into multidimensional space. Each step of the way is to learn to identify with the beloved. Whether you are a scientist doing research projects in the mineral kingdom, you are learning about that particular aspect -- you are loving that particular thing that you are researching. This is a form of love -- this is making love. It could be a musician, making music -- again you are absorbed in the creative act of those notes and sounds -- you are expanding consciousness outwards into the universe. Everything that you reach out for to touch, to explore, to give in creation is the expansion of consciousness -- it is the act of love. Love therefore is consciousness expanding outwards and onwards to embrace the total universe which is in itself, the Heart of being.

You could say that all this creation is imperfect, has pain and suffering, because you yourselves have pain and suffering -- because there is friction. You can say therefore that God incarnated in order to know more of himself, in order to cleanse arenas of pain and suffering within his or her body of manifestation. The only reason there is incarnation is simply this act of expanding onwards in consciousness of the soul -- it creates these forms so that it can gain more information about the material world. It incarnates into physical bodies so that it can transmute base substance. The cells of your bodies, your astral and Etheric constitution, the Devic lives are created with human consciousness, created with mind and are permeated essentially with love. It then draws that which is loving in response back to itself because that is the purpose of evolution. God incarnates in order to expand his or her sphere of consciousness -- integrate those realms of consciousness by transmitting those units of pain and suffering within that body of manifestation into units of love. Where there is no pain there is no suffering -- there is joy and inevitably bliss.

Everything is expanding onwards and upwards in this world. It is similar to the process in the bar magnet. The difference between a lump of iron and a magnet is that the iron can have little positive and negative polarities all arranged in random and chaotic order. It actually consists of millions of bar magnets all jumbled up in chaos. Then if you get another magnet and you stroke it the appropriate number of times it arranges all those little magnets inside the iron into order. It brings them all into a north and south polarity. From that then comes the radiation which is synonymous with each of you learning to love. Inside each of you is a jumble of chaotic forces, chaotic emotions -- mind mixed with emotions -- and where there is the arenas of chaos we will see the arenas of sickness and disease. And what love is endeavouring to do as you learn to reach out to the beloved, as you learn to harmonise with the other's auric sphere, emotions -- is to rearrange those jumbos chaotic portions of yourself into order, into polarities that are aligned with each other. Therefore from you comes a magnetic radiation that attracts to you all like substances. Like the bar magnet attracting to it all the other metallic elements around it. So you and your aura expands to attract to you all units that are in themselves loving -- that are love itself.

Likewise, as you travel along this path of love you see that there is harmony and chaos all around you. There are points of pain, and wherever there is pain, is sickness and disease. In society itself -- in nature's kingdom and later on in the cosmos (as your consciousness expands to include the cosmos) -- wherever you see this chaos, wherever you see chaotic ordering, you work to interrelate it all into harmony, into beauty, into order and into ordered space. Ignorance is antithetical to love from one definition, it is just simply unordered space, chaotic space, chaotic mind -- minds that are not functioning correctly because there is no logic to it. Transforming it through logic by giving it reason and information into an ordered space, into logical space, into expansive and inclusive reason -- this is the light of knowledge, the light of love.

Therefore, those of you that are learning to love must first of all love yourself, and you must work upon the elimination of the ignorance of your consciousness. You must eliminate the chaotic atoms there -- the chaotic atoms of mind and the chaotic atoms of your emotional body -- to integrate them and to interrelate them into a coherent whole. As you do this, as you work upon yourself then you start to reach out to others where ever there are arenas of pain and suffering, where ever there is disharmony, sickness and disease -- you work to produce bar magnets out of them and turn them into ordered, harmonious spheres of good. As you reach out to transform the chaos into order, you learn about the natural systems around you, you learn about the capacities of the other potential magnets, you expand your consciousness to include not just yourself but all around you in every direction that you wish to do it according to your inherent wisdom. You travel out from your space into the space of your beloved, then your beloved becomes the plant kingdom, then your beloved becomes humanity itself, your beloved becomes all sentient beings and all spheres of activity. You're always reaching out to transform the chaos into order and beauty. Where ever there is order and beauty -- there you have song and there you have harmonies -- the music of the spheres. There you have magnetism. And the magnetism attracts to you again the beloved. This is all the great beings of Light and Love that have travelled thus in past lives -- they inspire you with vision, they inspire you with joy.

If you are looking at yourself as a chakra system, then you will find that the forces of your chakra system are also chaotic on the whole. Your head is the positive polarity and your base of spine and sacral centre is the negative polarity. In the very centre of that is your heart. The heart centre is the centre of Love, is that which interrelates positive and negative into a fusion, into a unity. It is only from the heart that the energy of Love can emanate. The heart sound must come out to integrate all the other forces in to the body, into the chakras and the nadis and turn them into a unity. All hearts sing as one, all hearts are composed of the same substance. The heart of the universe speaks out its universal flux, its pulsations of the laws of Light and your heart is attuned to it. It is a sound of Oneness. It is the Oneness that God used to create this universe with -- this Earth sphere, this solar system, you yourself. All the chaotic elements within the body of deity were put into harmony into a rhythm, into psychic rhythm. That rhythm is his/her heart beating out the pulsations of life, the songs of life. As you awaken your hearts, you awake in your heart those songs. But God is just simply a being such as you or I that has learnt to transform all the chaotic elements within his/her body of manifestation from past solar systems, and has expanded onwards and onwards in conscious application to include vaster and vaster arenas of space. This can only be done through Love because only Love can cohere all to it -- it brings all to it in its embrace. Love is consciousness expanding. Love is therefore the revelation of the beloved -- as your beloved becomes more and more embracing of the whole so that the revelation of the whole becomes more and more complete, more and more infinite. This is the secret of enlightened being.

All beings whether they are the Christ or the Buddha or any other being on the path to light, must work upon the cleansing out of unordered space within them -- the chaotic substance. They throw out the negative pulsations of life, the arenas of sickness -- because Love in itself is that which produces health -- perfect health, perfect beauty. All great enlightened beings are healers by necessity, by the very action of their process of becoming enlightened. There is not an ounce of sickness that can be in their bodies or in their thoughts and emotions because there is nothing separative, there is nothing that relates to the self at all. All energy goes out in order to give, to heal. All is in harmony with in themselves and their whole aura is an aura of harmony. It is very potent in that harmony -- it is a magnet with very very strong radiations coming from it. Thus when you see pictures of the Buddha or any enlightened beings you see a very strong aura around their heads and bodies -- their halos -- indicating the potency of the radiation coming from them. When they are compared to your auras -- your auras are swirling emotion filled energy fields with swirls going this way and that because it is chaotic -- not ordered. These swirls going this way and that are what causes the diseases. They cause the weaknesses in your aura and therefore the weaknesses in your body. So what I am saying is as you learn to love, you learn to heal. It is the only real effect of love in many ways -- that of the healing potency in this universe. That which produces perfect health and enlightenment consciousness. That which is antithetical to chaos. Chaos and selfishness are the same things. When you are selfish you take from this balance the order around you in order to feed an empire within your body which fights against love, which fights against harmony. When beings build empires of selfishness around them they produce the type of world we see around us -- little boxes of bricks and mortar around us emotionally, little boxes of bricks and mortar in which we put our bodies. Nations manifesting weapons, to fight other nations for bits of land -- for selfishness. Individuals, likewise wanting to defend their personal territory, their emotional territory from others incursions. Here when you have this inherent warring and strife -- that is just another way of sickness is it not? Sicknesses -- those warring forces and entities within you -- they war against your health, your peace of mind and your emotional stability. This is antithetical to Love.

Work therefore at producing emotional harmony within your body and within your mind, integrated with the harmony of the all. When you start to awaken the heart centre in your meditation and you start to reside in that heart, then you begin to live within the consciousness of that space itself -- within the heart of all enlightened beings. You'll find that there is no separation or differentiation -- there are myriads of sparks to the flame, and those sparks themselves are different colours and different intensities of light -- but it's all part of one flame, it is all the one being, it is all the one consciousness, it is all the one life. This is the law of Love that governs all that is.

We have the concept of separation as we look at each other's forms sitting here, as we look at each other's eyes and legs and so forth, whether we are male or female. Then we go inside and close our eyes and link heart-to-heart. We see that the radiation flows from all hearts to meet all hearts in one common Etheric embrace. There is no separation it is a collective consciousness, a collective awareness. All awarenesses of this nature are working for only one thing -- to produce harmony and beauty and order and space. The space that we are, and the space that surrounds us in which we are but part of. And the greatest enlightened mind is just simply one who walks on this particular law of Love to reach outwards to further dimensions of space, to the greater reaches of space, to get to touch the beloved even more so -- to harmonise all within that which that being is. That in itself is bliss.

You only have pain and suffering when you think of yourself -- when you think of yourself as separate to something else or another being, or when you add things to yourself that are transient. When you stop thinking of yourself and you just think of the other and think of helping the other -- think of producing harmony, order and beauty within the consciousness of the other -- within the consciousness of the space that you are part of then there is no such thing as suffering, no such thing as pain. Yes, they can do to you as they did to Jesus and crucify you on the cross, put nails through your hands and so forth, but your consciousness then, is this; "Forgive them father, for they know not what they do". Simply that. They are then attacking the law of Love, they are attacking the Lord of Love through ignorance and selfishness, spite, vanity, pride and concretions of mind. When you follow His way, the way of an enlightened being then you are following what we call the "fellowship of the Christ's suffering". You see the sufferings of all sentient beings and you look downwards upon them and you know that you yourself cannot travel any further to Light or Love or greater awarenesses, in Buddhism this is called nirvana, until you have done everything that you can to bring those sentient beings, those suffering ones - to your state of peace, to your state of tranquility, to your state of beauty, to your state of enlightenment. Only then can you travel onwards. This is the heart of the bodhisattva vow in Buddhism. Your life praises such a being who can relinquish their ties to this other shore of enlightened beings -- that is full enlightenment whereby you no longer need to incarnate, until those beings have brought all to them. Only then will they take the step onwards.

There is no true enlightenment until those units of suffering that are part of your consciousness and embrace have been released from suffering. Thus these great enlightened beings incarnate again and again and again, working at a plan worked out by all of them for the betterment of human livingness. The problem with enlightened beings working as a collective heart, working as one and working for a plan that covers millennia in time, is that they cannot interfere with human free will. All human beings have the free will to be selfish, or the free will to walk the path of Love. They have the free will to inflict pain and suffering upon themselves and upon all around them, or to help themselves and all around them. God has the power to make spiritual robots of all of you -- he could touch you all with the magic wand and make you totally loving beings -- but then you would be simply children, like it was with Adam and Eve before they knew not themselves when they walked naked in the Garden of Eden. They knew of no such thing as sex etc.

The purpose of evolution is not that noble of spiritual innocence. The purpose of evolution is to make of you wise, as Gods. You do this and you learn this through the realms of pain and suffering -- you learn what not to do. If you learn to take from others around you and to do things for selfish purposes it produces for you and for all around you, Hell, war states, the type of civilisation you have around you, materialism and all the things materialism gives you -- cold materialism -- but not Love. Not that which is truly beneficial. Just sickness, disease, pain and suffering. Inevitably you learn that that is not the way after many hundreds or thousands of incarnations, depending on the individual concerned. Everything is perfectly worked out so to produce harmony and order and continuous evolution towards greater and greater expansions of Love. Towards the human stage, such as we are, and then onwards from this human stage -- the superhuman stages that makes of us lovers of all -- your body is perfectly worked out. Within your body you have male and female polarities, male and female aspects. Those male and female aspects must be sought out. Some men are quite feminine in their constitution, and some women are quite masculine. Inevitably, the male and female polarity must be sought out and fused within and without the body. This is the secret of the highest forms of yoga -- tantra yoga. That which is within is also without, that which is without is also within. As you discover the laws of beauty and the laws of harmony within yourself, you will discover them also with out yourself. The two are the same. The internal universe and the external universe. Both obey this law of Love. Both come from the one source, the one magnetic centre.

The adage is "sacrifice sanctifies". Sacrifice is that which makes you divine. Sacrifice is that which brings the highest bliss into your consciousness -- because what is it that you are sacrificing? You are sacrificing your personality self, you are sacrificing your attachment to those things that are ephemeral, those things that are transient -- so that you can give yourself more to the beloved, so that you can give yourself more to the good of the greater whole. As you give yourself more and more to the good of the greater whole, so the energy field that sustains the greater whole, absorbs you into it. You become merged with it. The process of sacrifice is not, for instance, taking a knife and killing yourself, or the mortification of the body as the Buddha tried 2500 years ago and found that it was not the way, (mortification means starving yourself and going through severe penances, or even becoming celibate monks in a monastery) -- these things are what people often think as sacrifice, but I think more of sacrifice as living amongst society as it is and working in amongst it and giving to it daily what it needs. Become an example for that society of the way to live. Building a society around you that is an example for this greater materialistic society that is the right way to live. For instance, I could prefer to go and sit in a monastery and read some nice spiritual books, write poetry and meditate and develop great powers. However, this to me is not the best way to help people. The best way is to be amongst them. This is sacrificing what could be seen as a comfortable lifestyle in order to help the many that still live in darkness and still have areas of chaos in their minds -- arenas of chaos in their physical and emotional bodies. To try and shed light into those arenas to create ordered harmony. And as they manifest more in their consciousness and within their lifestyle that harmony, so my love is able to grow for them, and for those they reach out to. This is sacrifice. As you sacrifice your own needs in order to help the others around you, you sacrifice your attachment to material things, your attachment to ephemeral things -- but all the time you are giving your best and wisest way to those with whom you have karmic connections with so that you get sanctified and that the Lord of Love can bless you with his or her energies. Those energies can travel through your consciousness and through your veins and lift you to the highest centre of dynamic being -- to God -- to enlightenment consciousness.

Sacrifice brings in the highest of all energies. I use the term cosmic electricity to give an idea of this, that which transforms every cell in your body into living light. Most of you have not yet thought much in terms of energy and what energy does to you and how energy is contacted through love and through loving interrelationship. When you're constantly giving outwards to those around you to produce harmony, beauty and order in their lives, so the energy that comes into you from the Lords of harmony, beauty and order are very intense. According to the capacity of you to give, so the Lords of Light give to you. The more that you can receive, the more that you must give. The more that you give the more you must receive and the energy that comes in will become more and more intense, more and more joyous.

Joy is the song of the heart resounding outward as it gives. Happiness is what you experience as you go through your selfish forms of loving. One minute you are happy because things are going well for you and you are getting what you want out of life and the next minute you are sad because something has been taken away from you that you want or something has not worked out the right way for you according to your desires. Most of you flick from happiness to sadness and from happiness to depression. Joy is free from that. It is simply the song of the heart giving continuously to all around. It knows not happiness and it knows not sadness -- it is simply joyously giving -- because it is the beloved out there that is receiving. The sadness or what we call the "fellowship of the Christ's suffering" comes when the beloveds cannot receive the gift that the lover is to give. When the beloved is too blind and rejects the gift in some way or the other -- this crucifies the lover for trying to give. Then there is the sadness, but even so the lover is not dependent on giving the gifts. The gifts can store up like a dam inside the lover, and the lover switches every which way to give the gift in every combination that is possible. Because the lover is always looking to give, the lover is full of joy. It is not dependent upon the beloveds ability to receive the gifts, it just simply is there always ready to give. Bliss comes as a higher state of being when this energy from divinity pours down -- it comes down because of the fact that your beloved is now so immense in size, so vast in number that the energy that pours in is so intense that you can barely bear it in consciousness. It transforms your gross substance -- every cell in your body becomes a cell of light and your gross substance is transformed into Etheric substance -- into the substance of the higher dimensions. Only that type of substance can bear that type of high and exquisite energy. That which you are giving out, which is pouring out of you and your aura is reaching a vast number of beings, and they are each taking their cups to you for replenishing.

This is what makes a great enlightened being, this is what makes a Christ -- this energy of bliss pouring into them and the myriads that must receive it. This is what allows the miracles to be wrought by such great beings because they no longer live consciously in a body of flesh, as we live, which is illusional -- they live in a body of Light. Every cell, every chakra is pulsating vivivating light -- and you have the radiance that you see in the pictures of the Buddha or around an enlightened being. They are no longer human in the sense that you or I are, with corporal bodies. This is what Jesus demonstrated after he died on the cross -- they put him in the tomb and he disappeared from that tomb and appeared before his disciples on the road to Emmaus and places like that. The story of doubting Thomas: the eleven disciples were busy cowering in their rooms frightened of the Jews because they also were bound to be crucified if they were found out -- and Jesus appeared amongst them and Thomas said, 'I don't believe that this is the Christ' and he had to touch the wounds. This particular being -- a body of living Light, the substance was still material enough for Thomas to touch, even though the radiation was coming from him. This is the story that is repeated many times in different versions -- in the great saints of Buddhism and Hinduism -- it is not confined to Christianity. Even in the old Testament, we get Ezekiel going to heaven in a chariot of wheels, one of those said to have never died. All great beings, and all of you can achieve such ability if you walk this path of love to bliss. If you love so much, so as to transform the substance of your body into a sphere of light -- radiatory energy. Then you live in bliss. The bliss is uncommunicable to people for they do not understand what bliss is. This is the sunyata of Buddhism, the satori of the Zen Buddhist monk, it produces the highest revelations. They cannot explain it in terms of words or concepts they can only try to explain it in terms of what it is not.

So you go from happiness to joy and from joy to bliss on this path of Love. This path is therefore a path of sacrifice because you sacrifice everything in the way to Love that impedes you, to love more and more and to give more and more to those around you. It is not blind giving it is the giving that necessitates the development of great wisdom. Therefore this path is the path of consciousness expanding -- you have to know how to give to the beloved and as your beloved becomes more and more embracing and more and more the universe so then the whole knowledge of how to give to the whole universe is yours and this is what makes you a Buddha or a Christ. This is what makes you a great enlightened being. Absolute wisdom, and great expansions of knowledge, great storehouses of revelation -- the past, the present and the future become one. You must use the past and mould it into the ever present now in such a way that the future is fulfilled. The enlightened being lives always in the future, never in the past. We human beings who are walking on this planet Earth on the whole, live in the past. We are moulded and manipulated by past events, which is our karma. We are ignorant of the future and the way that it happens to us -- occasionally you may have premonitions or flashes of the future -- but the enlightened being of which there are many, such as Jesus and Nostradamus -- they can foretell future, they live in the future and they mould it in such a way that the present is manifested in such a way that all beings can come closer to God and closer to the source or fount of all Love. That Love is dynamic electricity, it is the energy of bliss itself. Uncommunicable to anyone who has not experienced it.

Knowledge, revelation of all the past and the future awakens in you as you travel onwards and outwards in your ability to give. And of course most people on the beginning of this path are fearful of giving. This is because you have been hurt through your interrelationships with others who are unloving. What you have to do in this art of sacrifice is to overcome those fears, overcome those barriers of giving, overcome your sensualities and overcome your forms of separateness. Become courageous, think out always how best to give and understand that the language of love is truth and truth only -- there are no distortions and no lies. Sometimes you must give the truth to people who will not like it, because you have to teach them the things that they need to do in order to cleanse the sicknesses and diseases out of them. And the things that cause the sicknesses and diseases are the things that they like and the things that they are attached to with their sensualities and their selfishness and so forth. It gives them personally their forms of happiness and you have to teach them that happiness is not the way, but that joy is -- joy means service work, joy means giving. The true lover is always active on the physical plane and on the inner realms, always working out how best to give. There is no time to rest as such, no forms of sloth in their lifestyle. How could joy or bliss manifest if there is sloth -- if there is laziness then there is selfishness.

So you will find that the lover, be that of a monk meditating in the mountains all the time is still intensely active, intensely busy always working out how to give because the energy of joy demands that. How best to do it, and manifesting accordingly -- according to the plan that's worked out by the consciousness expanding, and until of course you are one with the heart of all that is -- no longer human, but divinity incarnate, divinity disincarnate -- the two are really the one. Everything that limits a being to being a lover is eliminated and this is the path of sacrifice. The only thing that is left is the union with all that is -- everything else has been given away. This act of giving away is a beautiful process -- that which is needed no longer on this path to love. It is no longer needed so why hang on to it when you could simply give it.

In India and places like that it is easier to become a yogi or Saint , you can walk around naked if you want, giving away all your physical plane possessions. In the West we can't do that. What we are asked to do on this path is sacrifice -- hang on to physical plane possessions just enough so that it can help us to teach others the right way of living. You have to learn to share your resources, your mental resources, your emotional resources and your physical plane resources. You have to learn to show humanity how to give by sharing resources -- not by taking resources from the planet, not by raping the planet, and not by helping those that rape the planet to do so. To use the resources that you have very wisely, don't destroy the paper products that come from trees without thinking very carefully as to the best way of using them. Don't waste electricity because that again is a form of rape of the planet. We could go on and on with some of the more environmental issues that most of you are familiar with -- all of this is part of the law of Love unfolding. But as you become more and more aware of it, the meaning of non wasting resources and non raping the planet gets transcended into higher dimensions and transforms into more embracing ways of looking at it. It is a wonderful path.

All of us that are here of course, are here because we have some of this vision of the heart, even though we are all travelling on different levels and degrees of this path, different degrees of learning how to help and to give to each other and the planet and Cosmos. And it is my great love and my feeling of love whenever I see beings such as you sitting to listen -- that my heart goes out, my joy goes out to you, and I am even more joyous when it comes back and that is what I wish to see all of you do. Give each other your hearts, give each other your joy, learn to show each other how best to live and work so that we can show society the best way to live. Learn to live more cooperatively and unselfishly -- diminish friction and pain.

As we learn to give to others and help them individually, you learn about people and you learn about how to give. Our knowledge is expanded and their knowledge is then expanded from interrelating with us. This is the concept of 'conscious co-operator' -- sharing resources and sharing our talents. Each one of us are individual and unique. Each one of us are beautiful. Each one of us are Lords of Love in the making, flowering, unfolding. Each one of us have much to give. And all that a being as a lover can do with another being is to bring out of that being their full potential and creative talents. To turn those beings as much as possible into creative cooperators with the universal law of Love. As you learn to love your partners, don't take or demand anything from them but give to them that which draws out of them the very best in them, their best creative potential. And as you work to make of them creative beings then you yourself flower in your own creativity and you share each other's creativity and you share each other's aura you share each other's wisdom. You grow together and as a consequence you will produce a child. All lovemaking is really to produce the child. It can be a physical plane child in terms of the baby that you can wash the nappies of -- and that is heterosexual love, or it can be a spiritual child -- a child born of the creativity that the beloved is drawing out of the other and where you are sharing certain forms of activity, especially things on the physical plane that are examples for others to follow. This can be producing art, music or simply helping each other to grow and that is the spiritual and creative child. That is the purpose of lovemaking. The union of the two to produce a third factor which is greater than the two, which is the product of that interrelationship of the two. That is the concept of divinity in religion.

Love is consciousness itself -- unadulterated consciousness -- it is not limited by the personality: that that is your personal self, your physical body and the brain consciousness. Its existed, this consciousness, before you came into incarnation and it will exist long after you leave this incarnation. In Jungian terms it is the 'collective unconciousness'. It is at onement with the mind structures of all sentient beings and at onement with the mind structures of the Hierarchy of Love. All the great beings such as the Buddha and the Christ etc, who so loved humanity that their entire outward life was but a service to help humanity and to help the society around them better themselves. By doing so they gained great insight into the nature of the universe into the laws of life.

What is also happening at all times is the continuous creation of new solar systems, new galaxies, new cosmoses. The greater amount of space out there is in darkness, it is but dust. Cosmic dust is the norm. Stars are relatively few and far between. Wherever you have a stellar body you have a loving individual creating a body of light, creating a solar system through which forms such as ours can evolve. In between the stars there is dust. Not nothing, not a vacuum, but dust. Atoms here and there -- a great amount of substance in the universe is this cosmic dust -- far, far greater dust than there is stars, bodies of light. Each conscious individual sacrifices part of them-self in order to cohere this dust into a unity. Again, this magnetism, a coherent form, so that it can be salvaged and sanctified, so it can be infused with consciousness and made divine -- so it can go through the human stage of evolution and then enter the superhuman stages, so that you too can know of love.

Intelligence is inherent throughout substance, throughout space and time. Love is that which coheres the intelligence into meaningful forms and gives it purpose, gives it the overview of the how and the when and the where-to. You can see that within this is the concept of sacrifice, the concept of limitation. The true lover always limits him or herself in order to give. God as such, limits his or her freedom of movement in order so that a world sphere such as ours can be formed and so that a human kingdom can arise out of it and so that the human kingdom can evolve into Gods. That is basically the act of sacrifice. A God, a Planetary Logos limits him or herself for a vast duration of time that it takes for a human kingdom to evolve out of a mineral kingdom and then onwards to become gods themselves, so that they themselves can collect to them the dust of space and convert it into a human kingdom and to infuse it with consciousness. You literally do the same when you seed or impregnate a woman with your sperm. It is a similar sort of concept. The substance of the womb to produce the child. The woman goes through those nine months of gestation and waiting and sacrifice which for her is a sacrifice as she must give up so many things in order to produce the child, and in the end goes through the pain of birth. That is the act of love.

Being willing to suffer pain on that cross, if you wish, so that the divine child can be born. Born into an imperfect world. Why is it born into an imperfect world? The purpose is, so that child can be given the gifts that will enable the child to make the world more harmonious, more beneficent. This is again the concept of lovemaking. The concept of giving. As it is within the human couple so it is within the greater whole. As above so below. That which is within is also without. You can see that the law of Love is the law of conscious interrelationships, of conscious cooperative interrelationships where these magnetic forces are interrelated to make one great dynamo of pulsating living energy. We're each separate little bar magnet that is focused on all these scattered ways which is how society is at present, when they learn to cooperate and align themselves to produce one great dynamo of energy -- and this dynamo of energy, once human beings learn to cooperate and interrelate their auric fields, their etheric bodies, their north/south polarities into a unity extends outwards to embrace the universe. Wherever these energy lines touch there are beings interrelated and integrated with it and it becomes one cooperative dynamic whole. One consciousness, one mind but billions of separate unities within there, all sharing the same experience but manifesting according to their inherent capacities. This is the law of Love and this is what sustains the universe.

Human beings, because they are scattered and chaotic -- they live according to the laws of chaos rather than the laws of order and harmony and beauty -- are not in contact consciously with the great magnetic lines of force that extend from the lovers of all, from the great beings that have created this universe. But as you come in tune with your hearts centre, and with your hearts centre you interrelate the polarities within you then that polarity within you and the polarity without you embrace and meet and become one and you experience that unspeakable state of mind which the Buddhists could only explain in terms of what it is not -- they could not explain what it actually was. They call it tathagatagarbha. The Buddha nature. They try to use such terms as being ness and some beings try to tell it as nothingness. Neither here nor there, neither this nor that. This experience is what the beloved gets absorbed into. Great power comes into your body because that dynamo, the external beloved and your dynamo are interrelated and it allows you to perform miracles on this physical plane as Jesus did and all the great sages did that were lovers of humanity and were lovers of the all. The miracles are created because they work with the laws of creation itself, through the interrelationship of the base of the spine and the head Lotus in conjunction with the energies that are the base of spine and the head Lotus of the greater whole, the laws of nature are comprehended because that is what the lover does in the act of reaching out to the beloved. Comprehending the laws of nature the laws of the how, and the where, and the why to, of how everything comes into being, because only through that and only by that means can the lover actually give to the beloved. You tap into the energies of creation, and you use the energies of creation wisely and beneficently to assist and help the all because the act of love can only do one thing and that is to produce healing energies and health wherever sickness and disease, petulance and death lie. Sickness and disease, petulance and death are simply this act of chaotic interrelationship of bar magnets all conflicting with each other.

The other thing I want to point out in regards to this energy of love is the fact that the human Hierarchy itself is masculine in its orientation. We are conscious creators or if you wish we are manipulators -- we project energies and we force our way this way and that, we destroy what we see and we destroy what we wish to have for ourselves. We can create great beauty, or we can create the mess and the ugliness and the chaos that is presently around us. Because of this quality, the human Hierarchy is masculine in its polarisation. Masculinity necessitates its feminine polarity. The feminine polarity is what we call the deva Kingdom - the angelic kingdom -- the great archangels, the little fairies and the pixies and all those lives which all the religions of the world speak of and of which many seers have prophesied and seen and testified to. They together form all substance, all forms, out of their bodies, out of their forms, out of their consciousnesses, how forms are wrought. We are in a sense the consciousness that moulds them into the form that we wish, the shapes that we wish. There are points of interrelationship between the feminine Deva Kingdom and the masculine human kingdom, and finally on this path of love, a fusion or final marriage between the two streams of lives -- then one leaves the human kingdom altogether and goes into the superhuman. One leaves the earth and goes into cosmic space, and one becomes a God, a Logos.

All beings therefore obey the law of Love in this cosmos if they are working towards its integration, its evolution, its unfolding purpose. Within everybody there are those organs that resist this and those organs are karma bearing factors which produce the sicknesses and the diseases inherent within everybody whether it is a God or a human being. A deity that forms a planet such as this earth is limited by the karma and the substance that that being must use in order to serve and work through. The earth itself was not created out of nothing. The humanity on it did not come out of nowhere. You get the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, Eve created from Adams rib -- all these types of stories are purely allegorical. They speak of inner plane happenings. Happenings before the earth was formed. Everything is bound by karma and great beings, Logii come into existence and produce world spheres such as this earth in accordance with the karma of past patternings of former world spheres through which humanity has evolved into. Maybe as lesser states of evolution, maybe humans in a former world sphere may have been the animal kingdom or mineral kingdom. From mineral to plant, from plant to animal, from animal to human, from human to the divine -- so evolution goes in all spheres. And as you learn the law of Love, you will learn the way of conscious evolution of all kingdoms of nature and you will learn how to work consciously with the animal kingdom, the plant kingdom and so forth, with the devic lives that embody and incorporate those forms. Part of this working use our love for instants for domesticated animals. Other beings that are unfolding the law of Love have great receptivity to dolphins. Others have great receptivity to the forests of this earth and the way that they are being destroyed and they are trying to help them. Others have a greater receptivity to the evils within our society, and all the pestilences thereof and are working out ways to help there. These are lovers -- each one of them -- tapping into the law of Love. They have worked out that it is not sufficient simply to try to find happiness with one partner alone, but to see that that being, and that interrelationship can only be properly fulfilled when the embrace of love extends outwards into the world sphere and that being, whatever the chore or task that person has set upon him or herself is based on love, based on the seeing of a need and a sacrifice of the time and resources of that individual in order to rectify and make whole an area where there is obvious suffering and disease or imbalance that is caused generally by the act of man.

Understand also with this law of Love that the God of love that embodies this earth produces such things as earthquakes, such things as violent diseases -- AIDS and so forth -- and the cataclysms to come, because of the imbalances created by humanity itself. The karma that people generate by their unloving actions cannot be avoided. They must learn thereby. If they do not learn the lesson and they will incarnate again in such a situation and incarnate again until eventually they learn that to give to the whole is what life and love is about, because the God of Love, his consciousness and energy permeates all of space and the effect of his consciousness or his love in that consciousness is what we call the law of evolution. Evolution is progressive -- it is not retrogressive. If you look in the sweep of history you will see how humanity have progressed -- they have not gone backwards. The cycles come when they have to recapitulate things or errors of the past in order to learn from them. History is progressive and this is proof of the law of Love in action. Karma will only manifest in such a way that the individuals will gain from it -- even if they lose everything they have, it is because they have erred by taking things from other people or from nature in the past. Uncaring, unthinking and selfish actions, when you think of yourself rather than the Beloved, then you will reap the rewards thereof. When you give to the beloved then you will reap the rewards thereof. Therefore it is best always to give and to give and to give because as you reincarnate you will be given to and given to and given to. It is possibly a selfish ending to this talk, but what it really means is that as you learn to give, what is given to you are the gifts that you need in order to love better, in order to give better to greater wholes, to greater unities. You start off with a one-to-one relationship and that is mainly why we have this thing called sex, is to learn how to give to another individual. The very grounding in the law of Love is there. Then you learn to give to a tribe or a clan, then you learn to give to a nation, then you learn to give to a planet, then you learn how to give to a solar system, then you learn how to give to a local cosmos than you learn how to give to a galaxy, then a grouping of galaxies, then you learn how to give to a universe, then you learn how to give to all the universes. Thus the law of Love unfolds and expands based on this very elementary urge which is the law of attraction. It is quite simple. Give to one whom you regard as the beloved and the one who is the beloved to you will give you even more so that you can give more. So we, and the rest of the universe unfold together in a very, very progressive manner onwards, upwards, inwards and outwards into the heart that all there is and beyond. It is a wonderful universe, a wonderful energy, a wonderful path. It would be very, very wonderful if more beings were consciously treading this path of giving and helping and serving according to their own particular forms of loving expression.
